LEARN TO COOK "COCHINITA PIBIL" LIKE THE MAYANS

The Explorean Kohunlich

This unique resort nestled in the Mayan jungle now offers a new culinary and cultural experience. The Explorean Kohunlich invites all guests every Sunday to traditionally prepare one of the Yucatan Peninsula's most famous dishes... cochinita pibil.

Cochinita pibil is a prehispanic delicacy made from pork, a local spice combination called "recado rojo" or "achiote", sour oranges and banana leaves. The name of the dish comes from the mayan word "pib" that means hole in the ground, since it is precisely there that the meat cooks protected by the plantain leaves during approximately five hours. This underground oven is made from local wood and rocks – while the first is consumed by the fire, the rocks remain as a local construction material called "laja".

This activity enriches not only the taste buds but promotes Prehispanic culture as well!
